

Employee Handbook

Company: Northstar Mobility

Category: Core Employment Standards

Policy Owner: People Operations

Effective Date: January 1, 2026

Document Type: Employee-facing HR policy reference

Topic	Standard
Introductory period	90 days
Standard week	40 hours
Benefit election window	30 days
Resignation notice	2 weeks preferred

1. Welcome and Purpose

This handbook explains the everyday employment standards for Northstar Mobility employees. It is written for clarity, consistency, and employee self-service.

The handbook applies to regular full-time, regular part-time, intern, temporary, and fixed-term employees unless a section states otherwise.

Employees use this handbook as the first reference for workplace expectations and contact People Operations when policy details are unclear.

Employee guidance: keep related approvals, requests, receipts, or reports in the designated company system so decisions can be reviewed consistently.

Manager guidance: managers must apply this policy consistently, document exceptions, and consult the policy owner before approving any action that could create compliance, pay, privacy, security, or employee-relations risk.

Review standard: policy questions should be resolved using the current HR policy library, applicable law, and written guidance from the policy owner. Informal past practice does not override the approved policy.

2. Employment Classification

Full-time employees are regularly scheduled to work 40 hours per week and are eligible for the full benefits program, subject to plan terms.

Part-time employees are regularly scheduled to work fewer than 30 hours per week. Eligibility for selected benefits is determined by local law and the official benefit plan terms.

Temporary and intern assignments are time-limited and do not guarantee conversion to regular employment.

Employee guidance: keep related approvals, requests, receipts, or reports in the designated company system so decisions can be reviewed consistently.

Manager guidance: managers must apply this policy consistently, document exceptions, and consult the policy owner before approving any action that could create compliance, pay, privacy, security, or employee-relations risk.

Review standard: policy questions should be resolved using the current HR policy library, applicable law, and written guidance from the policy owner. Informal past practice does not override the approved policy.

3. Probation and Introductory Period

New regular employees complete a 90-day introductory period. The period is used to confirm role fit, work quality, attendance, collaboration, and alignment with company values.

Managers provide documented feedback at approximately 30, 60, and 90 days. Successful completion does not change at-will employment status where applicable.

The introductory period can be extended up to 60 additional days when performance, attendance, or training completion requires more review.

Employee guidance: keep related approvals, requests, receipts, or reports in the designated company system so decisions can be reviewed consistently.

Manager guidance: managers must apply this policy consistently, document exceptions, and consult the policy owner before approving any action that could create compliance, pay, privacy, security, or employee-relations risk.

Review standard: policy questions should be resolved using the current HR policy library, applicable law, and written guidance from the policy owner. Informal past practice does not override the approved policy.

4. Working Hours and Attendance

Standard office hours are Monday through Friday, 9:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. local time, with adjustments for approved shift schedules or regional requirements.

Employees are expected to be ready to work at the start of their scheduled day, attend required meetings, and notify their manager as soon as possible when delayed or absent.

Repeated unscheduled absences, late arrivals, or missed meetings may result in coaching, corrective action, or additional attendance controls.

Employee guidance: keep related approvals, requests, receipts, or reports in the designated company system so decisions can be reviewed consistently.

Manager guidance: managers must apply this policy consistently, document exceptions, and consult the policy owner before approving any action that could create compliance, pay, privacy, security, or employee-relations risk.

Review standard: policy questions should be resolved using the current HR policy library, applicable law, and written guidance from the policy owner. Informal past practice does not override the approved policy.

5. Pay Practices

Employees are paid according to the payroll calendar published by Payroll Operations. Non-exempt employees must accurately record all hours worked.

Overtime for non-exempt employees must be approved in advance. Unapproved overtime must still be reported and will be paid according to law.

Employees submit pay questions to Payroll within five business days of the pay date so corrections can be reviewed promptly.

Employee guidance: keep related approvals, requests, receipts, or reports in the designated company system so decisions can be reviewed consistently.

Manager guidance: managers must apply this policy consistently, document exceptions, and consult the policy owner before approving any action that could create compliance, pay, privacy, security, or employee-relations risk.

Review standard: policy questions should be resolved using the current HR policy library, applicable law, and written guidance from the policy owner. Informal past practice does not override the approved policy.

6. Performance Management

Performance is evaluated through goal progress, quality of work, ownership, collaboration, customer impact, and adherence to company policies.

Formal performance reviews occur at least annually. Managers also conduct quarterly check-ins when needed for goal alignment and development planning.

Performance improvement plans are used when expectations are not met and structured support is appropriate. The plan identifies gaps, required outcomes, support resources, and review dates.

Employee guidance: keep related approvals, requests, receipts, or reports in the designated company system so decisions can be reviewed consistently.

Manager guidance: managers must apply this policy consistently, document exceptions, and consult the policy owner before approving any action that could create compliance, pay, privacy, security, or employee-relations risk.

Review standard: policy questions should be resolved using the current HR policy library, applicable law, and written guidance from the policy owner. Informal past practice does not override the approved policy.

7. Benefits Overview

Eligible employees can participate in health, dental, vision, retirement, life insurance, disability, wellness, and employee assistance programs.

Benefit eligibility, waiting periods, and employee contributions are governed by the official plan documents.

Employees must complete benefit elections within 30 days of eligibility or wait until the next open enrollment period unless they experience a qualifying life event.

Employee guidance: keep related approvals, requests, receipts, or reports in the designated company system so decisions can be reviewed consistently.

Manager guidance: managers must apply this policy consistently, document exceptions, and consult the policy owner before approving any action that could create compliance, pay, privacy, security, or employee-relations risk.

Review standard: policy questions should be resolved using the current HR policy library, applicable law, and written guidance from the policy owner. Informal past practice does not override the approved policy.

8. Workplace Conduct

Employees are expected to communicate respectfully, protect confidential information, follow safety rules, and use company resources responsibly.

Bullying, harassment, discrimination, retaliation, falsification of records, theft, threats, or intentional policy violations are prohibited.

Employees can report concerns to a manager, People Operations, Legal, Security, or the ethics reporting channel.

Employee guidance: keep related approvals, requests, receipts, or reports in the designated company system so decisions can be reviewed consistently.

Manager guidance: managers must apply this policy consistently, document exceptions, and consult the policy owner before approving any action that could create compliance, pay, privacy, security, or employee-relations risk.

Review standard: policy questions should be resolved using the current HR policy library, applicable law, and written guidance from the policy owner. Informal past practice does not override the approved policy.

9. Corrective Action

Corrective action can include coaching, verbal warning, written warning, final warning, suspension, or termination depending on the situation.

Northstar can skip corrective action steps when conduct is serious, creates risk, or violates law or safety requirements.

Employees are expected to participate honestly in investigations and corrective discussions.

Employee guidance: keep related approvals, requests, receipts, or reports in the designated company system so decisions can be reviewed consistently.

Manager guidance: managers must apply this policy consistently, document exceptions, and consult the policy owner before approving any action that could create compliance, pay, privacy, security, or employee-relations risk.

Review standard: policy questions should be resolved using the current HR policy library, applicable law, and written guidance from the policy owner. Informal past practice does not override the approved policy.

10. Separation and Exit Process

Employees who resign are asked to provide at least two weeks of written notice so the company can plan transition coverage.

Company property must be returned by the final working day, including laptops, badges, access cards, mobile devices, documents, and equipment.

Final pay, benefit continuation, and unused vacation payout are handled according to applicable law and company policy.

Employee guidance: keep related approvals, requests, receipts, or reports in the designated company system so decisions can be reviewed consistently.

Manager guidance: managers must apply this policy consistently, document exceptions, and consult the policy owner before approving any action that could create compliance, pay, privacy, security, or employee-relations risk.

Review standard: policy questions should be resolved using the current HR policy library, applicable law, and written guidance from the policy owner. Informal past practice does not override the approved policy.

Acknowledgement and Questions

Employees are responsible for reading this policy and following the standards that apply to their role and location. Questions should be directed to the policy owner or People Operations before taking action when requirements are unclear.

This policy may be updated periodically. The current approved version in the HR policy library controls over printed or downloaded copies.